

Australasian Laboratory Management Conference and Exhibition 2018

Monday 12 – Wednesday 14 November
Mantra Bell City, Melbourne

Evolution, not Revolution

Event Information and Registration

Science Industry Australia and Australasian Laboratory Managers Association are proud to present the Australasian Laboratory Management Conference 2018. Incorporating workshops, plenary sessions, networking opportunities and an exhibition, the 2018 conference will highlight the theme:

Evolution, not Revolution

In today's business climate, organisations (including laboratories) succeed by evolving and selectively pursuing innovations based upon evolution, not revolution. Evolutionary steps can potentially move an organisation in new directions, or position it better for adapting to conditions of change and innovation. Evolution does not avoid risk. Like any risk, those taken via evolutionary steps never guarantee success, but their evolutionary nature increases the chances for favourable outcomes. Evolution does not preclude ambitious goals. Since lofty goals generally will not be achieved with a revolutionary approach, evolutionary steps are required. Evolving organisations do things much differently than what has been done before. Their approach, or how they go about embracing change, is one that fosters success. A better way forward is by evolution, not revolution.

Why should I attend?

ALMC 2018 promises to be an informative and educational event, opening on Monday November 12 with a full day of workshops, culminating in a grand opening cocktail function to provide an opportunity to network with members of SIA and ALMA as well as participants in our industry.

Tuesday 13 and Wednesday 14 November will engage participants in a comprehensive programme of papers covering current issues facing Laboratory Managers such as regulatory compliance, employment, LIMS, accreditation, health and safety, procurement and design, to mention a few.

Concurrent with the technical papers will be a wide ranging exhibition of organisations providing equipment and services specific to laboratories.

The conference dinner on Tuesday 13 November will provide another informal opportunity to network with like-minded industry associates and be a great forum for information sharing. Entertainment on the night will be provided by Australia's latest acapella sensation, The Velvetones.
